

THE IRISH TIMES magazine

Saturday November 12, 2011

Lighting up living spaces

Róisín Fitzpatrick (left) is a Bray-based artist who turned to creativity following a brain aneurysm and near-death experience. The work features hand-sewn Swarovski crystals on large-format silk canvases. She exhibits her creations in New York and has garnered a following. Her work hangs in Natirar, Richard Branson's recently opened spa in New Jersey, and in the Fitzpatrick Grand Central Hotel in Manhattan. For more see roisinfitzpatrick.com. Prices start from €1,200.

Alanna Gallagher